CALL FOR PAPERS

Submit abstracts by November 6, 2020

The Cascadia Prairie-Oak Partnership invites you to submit an abstract for the 2021 CPOP Conference. With the theme Oak and Prairie Conservation at a Crossroads: Setting a Path for Success, this conference will explore novel ways that the conservation community is strategically restoring and preserving prairie-oak habitats. CPOP specifically encourages submissions that focus on collaboration and partnerships, research that advances conservation goals, and indigenous priorities and practices that support strategic direction and effective implementation of prairie-oak conservation.

Symposia & Special Sessions

CPOP is providing an advance opportunity for those interested in coordinating a symposium or special session. In the body of an email please submit a prospectus (topic, potential presenters, and duration) by July 6. Don't worry if you don't have a full slate of folks quite yet – get your idea submitted and we can work together to fill your session. A full proposal including title, description and presenters (including abstracts) is due by November 6. See submission guidelines below.

Oral & Poster Presentations

CPOP is soliciting abstracts for presentations that address oak and prairie ecology and management, species recovery and reintroductions, habitat restoration techniques, private lands conservation, incorporation of traditional ecological knowledge, collaborative partnerships, conservation infrastructure, landscape protection and planning, education, outreach, policy, and more. Oral presentations are typically 20 minutes (including 5 minutes for questions). Posters will be presented at the poster session and some may be selected for display throughout the duration of the conference. See submission guidelines below.
